CARETAKERS' DWELLINGS

Caretakers dwelling investigation

The subject site and its surrounding has been zoned 4(a) General Industrial as far back as the Planning Scheme for the Municipality of Queanbeyan, dated 17 February 1967. Much of the land under this zone has been carried across into the Queanbeyan Local Environmental Plan 1998 as Zone 4(a) Industrial A and Queanbeyan Local Environmental Plan 2012 (QLEP 2012) as IN1 General Industrial. Therefore this land was not rezoned from light industrial to general industrial.

Prior to QLEP 2012, there were no light industrial zone or equivalent under QLEP 1998. Some of the nearby industrial lands that has an interface with residential zones (including land east of Kealman Road, east of Lorn Road and along John Bull Street) were rezoned from Zone 4(a) General Industrial to IN2 Light Industrial when QLEP 2012 was gazetted.

Under Clause 34 of QLEP 1998, “dwelling-houses used in connection with other development permitted in this zone” (commonly known as caretakers units) are listed as permissible with development consent in Zone 4(a). These type of dwelling-houses were allowed to support the industrial activities of the land. Council records show nine caretakers units have been approved in the area. It is uncertain whether all approved caretakers units have been built or still being used as such.

‘Caretakers units’ or ‘dwelling-houses used in connection with other development permitted in this zone’ are not a defined term in the Standard Instrument—Principal Local Environmental Plan therefore they are not included in Zone IN1 General Industrial under QLEP 2012 as a type of development permissible with consent.
