A RICH HERITAGE

“Newcastle, a city celebrated for its iconic industrial heritage.

Newcastle is transforming from a steel city to a lifestyle city with vibrant public places, connected transport networks and a distinctive built environment.”

THE STORE

“The imposing Hunter Street building was once the headquarters of the Newcastle and Suburban Co-operative Society Ltd, more popularly known as The Store.

Until the 1960s, the society had a stranglehold on Newcastle retail trade, based on loyal customers rewarded by a famous ‘divvy’, or dividends rebate, returned every six months from their purchases. People then often re-invested their money towards new fridges, furniture or washing machines.”
